

■ THE NIGHT SHIFT

Pre-Market Intelligence Report | June 17, 2020 | Delivered before US open

Good morning. While you slept, I watched. Today has one big story.

■ ASIA SIGNAL

The semiconductor space sent two conflicting signals overnight. TSMC dropped 2.34% — a big move that usually means US chip stocks open weak. But Samsung jumped 2.56% in the same session. Two chip companies, opposite directions, same night.

This matters because weakness is TSMC-specific, not a sector collapse. When the whole chip sector is in trouble, both fall together. Nikkei up 1.33% confirms risk is ON in Asia today.

■ NVDA and AMD are not TSMC. The TSMC drop is not a warning for US semis today.

■ CRYPTO RISK GAUGE

BTC up 0.3% on a 1.0% day range. ETH flat. Both calm and confirmed moving same direction. Crypto is completely silent today.

■ No risk signal from crypto. Clean green light.

■ AFTER HOURS

Quiet across the board. All 5 stocks moved under 0.7%. No earnings surprises. AMD holding at $510 after hours confirms the fade is complete. No second move overnight.

■ Clean slate. No overnight news carrying into tomorrow.

■ PREMARKET — THE BIG STORY

AMD EUPHORIA FADE — CONFIRMED

AMD gapped up 7.92% premarket. From $506 to $547. Something specific happened — earnings beat, product news, or analyst upgrade. Retail traders chased the open.

What followed is the lesson:

Premarket: $547 | Regular Close: $507 | After Hours: $510

AMD gapped up 7.9% and gave it all back in one session. This is a textbook EUPHORIA_FADE. Institutions sold into the retail excitement. Stock closed where it started.

NVDA followed up 1.8%. QQQ rose 1.69%. SPY up 0.55%. The whole market got pulled up by AMD's move — then AMD itself faded.

■ Gap ups on normal volume without follow-through are traps. Your morning read saved you today.

■ TODAY'S READ

AMD taught the pattern book its first real lesson today. A 7.9% gap with no volume confirmation is not a breakout — it is a fade setup. This system spotted the gap at premarket and confirmed the fade after hours. Full cycle. Pattern recorded.

■ First confirmed EUPHORIA_FADE in the database. Watch for this pattern again.

For educational purposes only. Not financial advice.

The Night Shift | Pre-Market Intelligence | Daily before US open